Matthew Goldsbrough

Non-Executive Director and Independent Commercial Advisor

Where I'm most useful

As decisions become more consequential, especially in the middle stage of growth when early demand must become repeatable sales and the founder still carries too much of the commercial story. My strongest fit is with founder-led or investor-backed businesses in software, data management and tech-enabled services.

A good product, but an unclear route to customers. I test the commercial story against customer evidence and help clarify where the value lies.

Growth has outpaced how the business works. I help leaders make priorities and trade-offs explicit, reducing dependence on any one person.

The board needs clarity before its next move. I make sense of complex commercial evidence and challenge assumptions so decisions are better grounded.

Calm, prepared and direct

I listen to people closest to the work and ask direct questions until the practical choice is clear. I challenge founders and executives while leaving them in charge, strengthening their thinking and confidence to act.

Experience behind the judgement

VP Marketing, EMEA, Hyperion; European Marketing Director, Informatica. International experience across Europe and the USA, including Hyperion's journey from startup through IPO to $500m global scale.

NED and board chair, Britannia Garment Packaging. Three successive years of balance-sheet growth, strengthening governance and mentoring the CEO.

Independent Commercial Advisor, Goldsbrough Consulting Ltd and independent practice. Over 20 years supporting leaders, including commercial assessments across 50+ organisations.

Seeking salaried independent NED appointments in the North East and wider UK. I welcome introductions from founders, investors, chairs and search firms.
